

Wanderlust

Lauren Aquilina

Who am I to tell you
That you should stay
When you're searching for the heatwave
And I am the rain
Who am I to warn you
When I'm what you're running from
'cause I've done nothing wrong
But I'll never be right
So who am I to put up such a fight

Your heart is filled with wanderlust
Desire to go elsewhere
It isn't me, I'm not the one to take you there
I know you'll be happy
And eventually I'll be fine
But for now I'll grit my teeth
Through the goodbye

This is what you want
And I put you first
I'd rather be your second
Than be your worst
Prioritize your feelings
And you won't get hurt
It's not like mine deserve any worth

Your heart is filled with wanderlust
Desire to go elsewhere
It isn't me, I'm not the one to take you there
I know you'll be happy
And eventually I'll be fine
But for now I'll grit my teeth
Through the goodbye

Your heart is filled with wanderlust
Desire to go elsewhere
It isn't me, I'm not the one to take you there
And I may not understand it
And eventually I'll be fine
But for now I'll grit my teeth
Through the goodbye
