

Whoever You Are

Lauren Hoffman

I've been waiting a long, lonely lifetime for you
Hoping to find a love that is finally true
Whoever you are, I hope you don't have to travel far
And you'll love me forever
Whoever you are

As I ride down that long lonely highway without you
I can't keep myself from wondering about you
Whoever you are, I hope you drive a shining car
And you'll take me to heaven
Whoever you are

And I know heaven is in your eyes
Like a melody, ringing in the skies
And I've often wondered what you should say
When you walk in and find me

Now I know I've driven some lovers away
But they didn't have the power to stay
You're my only salvation in a world of isolation
You are my answer, whoever you are

And I know heaven is in your smile
Like a melody whispered to a child
And I've often wondered what you would say
When you walk in and need me

So give me somewhere to hide my fears
Just one reason to ride away from here
Give me something to change my life
You and I could be right

So give me somewhere to hide my fears
Just one reason to ride away from here
Give me something to change my life
You and I could be right
Whoever you are
Whoever, whoever you are
