Mr. Intentional

Lauryn Hill

Yeah, yeah, yeah hey, yeah hey, yeah hey

See the road to hell is paved with good intentions Can't you tell the way they have to mention How they've helped you out, you're such a hopeless victim Please don't do me any favors, Mr Intentional

All their talk is seasoned to perfection The road they walk, commanding your affection They need to be needed, deceived by motivation An opportunity, to further situation

Why they so important is without explanation Please don't patronize me, Mr Intentional Oh, oh, oh oh

We give rise to ego by being insecure The advice that we go desperately searching for The subconscious effort to support our paramour To engage in denial, to admit we're immature

Validating lies, Mr Intentional, oh Open up yours eyes, Mr Intentional

Stuck in a system that seeks to suck your blood Held emotionally hostage by what everybody does Counting all the money that you give them just because Exploiting ignorance in the name of love

Stop before you drop because that's just the way it works
Please don't justify me, Mr Intentional
Oh one dimensional, Mr Intentional
Oh, oh don't you do me any favors
Oh, oh, oh oh

Wake up you've been sleeping Take up your bed and walk Stop blaming other people Oh it's nobody else's fault

Accept the truth about you You know that life goes on without you And your expensive misinventions Disguising your intentions

Don't worship my hurt feelings, Mr Intentional Oh, oh oh oh See I know you can't help me, Mr Intentional

The only help I need to live, is unprofessional The only wealth I have to give, is not material And if you need much more than that, I'm not available

Please don't entertain me, Mr Intentional Oh I don't need your sympathy, Mr Intentional Stay away from me, Mr Intentional So one dimensional, Mr Promotional, Mr Emotional, Mr Intentional Oh oh, oh
