

Wax Down Wings

Lazlo Bane

So when exactly
Did you find the time we spent together badly?
Did you find
That all my habits would drive you crazy?
Now you raise your head and say
"You're not the only one."

I called my best friend.
He's the one who'll say that you were
Better off when
You were in control of all your own decisions,
But instead he says to me
"You're not the only one."
No, you're not the only one.

"Whose wax down wings are melting in the sun."
You'll never crack my marrow
It's just a fractured ego.

In the fishbowl,
Feeling sick of how I've become sentimental
All my confidence
Is sucked into this black hole
Turned to my hand and say
"Where's the pleasure gone?"

Then it all ends
When you realize that you were
Better off when
You were in control of all your own decisions
Then you raise your head and say
"I've finally overcome
I'm not the only one."

"Whose wax down wings are melting in the sun."
You'll never crack my marrow
It's just a fractured ego.
You'll never crack my marrow

And then it festers in my dreams
I'm falling from the sky
But I land on my feet
To regain
Composure that was my mine

(You're not the only one)
You'll never crack my marrow
(Whose melting in the sun)
It's just a fractured ego
(You're not the only one)
You'll never crack my marrow
(Whose melting in the sun)
It's just a fractured ego.