

Long Night

LeAnn Rimes

Feel the underground breeze as the trains go by pushing through the crowd to see the sky around you I blink as the green lights turn to red every body on the street trying to get ahead surrounded and when I lose myself in this raging sea your a beacon of light your the air I breathe

Oh long night
I want you all to myself from now 'til the morning light maybe we could make a great escape
run away like thieves and we'll lock the world away somewhere no one will ever find us on this long night
long night

I got a long ride home to think about things and the song that the man on the radio sings is so true, reminds me of you the way that you know just who I am when I don't say a word you still understand it gets through, yeah who knew it's days like this when I crave you the most shivers down my spine when your holding me close

I want you all to myself from now 'til the morning light
somewhere no one will ever find us on this long night
long night
