

Goondiwindi Moon

Lee Kernaghan

These hands can turn timber into good stockyard rails
This back knows the burden of toil
Between fixing up fences and falling behind
Well I reckon I've been through it all.

Never knew I had feelings like this
And so much could change with a kiss.

And it's just me and you
And the Goondiwindi moon
All at once the world is standing still.
With the moonlight in your hair
And the softness of your skin
Taking me somewhere I've never been
Goondiwindi moon.

I've spent all of my life out on these black flood plains
I've wandered these paddocks alone
With the moon on my shoulder, a silent old friend
I lived in a world of my own

But there's a new light in my life
And I can't help this feeling inside

And it's just me and you
And the Goondiwindi moon
All at once the world is standing still.
With the moonlight in your hair
And the softness of your skin
Taking me somewhere I've never been
Goondiwindi moon.

Never knew I had feelings like this
And so much could change with a kiss

And it's just me and you
And the Goondiwindi moon (Goondiwindi moon)
All at once the world is standing still,
With the moonlight in your hair (your hair)
And the softness of your skin (softness of your skin)
Taking me somewhere I've never been
Goondiwindi moon (Goondiwindi moon)
