Two Hearts Collide

Sold in silence I never thought I could ever fall so deep Now I need to know how you feel And with a kiss I steal the silence from your lips

Hearts colliding Making waves that will echo through the years Never thought I would find a love so real And I know this I want the life that love can give Now I know what it means

A love so rare in years of wasted promises A love to care only love can make some sense of it A love affair and though it's only just begun A love to share when two hearts collide and beat as one Now I know you care

And I'll provide you with a dream that will never disappear With the words that I know you want to hear Without end I've found a love I will defend Now you know what I mean Now you know what I mean

A love so rare in years of wasted promises A love to care only love can make some sense of it A love affair and though it's only just begun A love to share when two hearts collide and beat as one Now I know you care

A love so rare in years of wasted promises A love to care only love can make some sense of it A love affair and though it's only just begun A love to share when two hearts collide and beat as one

A love so rare A love to care A love affair when two hearts collide and beat as one A love so rare A love to care A love affair
