

Outgrow

Lewis Watson

Oh mother,
Oh mother, I'm running from.
From the arms of another,
of another, broken home.

Remember when we were children,
We were just children, having fun.
With the old ghost in the garden,
Before we started, growing up.

Ooooooooo,
Oooohhhh,

Oh father,
Oh father, I guess I'm wrong,
The castles in the kitchen, that we kept building,
Slowly gone.

Remember when we were children,
We were just children, singing songs.
Passed down from your father,
Before we started, growing old.

When was the last time we,
stayed up to count the stars?
When was the last time we,
said that the world was ours?

Oh mother,
Oh mother, I'm outgrown,
I'm outgrown,

Oh brother, my brother,
Where have you gone?
I wrote to you, said I missed you,
You and our sister, are moving on.

Remember when we were children,
We were just children, having fun.
I fall asleep with a burden,
and we get up early, to beat the sun

When was the last time we,
stayed up to count the stars?
When was the last time we,
said that the world was ours?

Oh mother,
Oh mother, I'm outgrown,
We never can not know,
We never can outgrow.

When was the last time we,
stayed up to count the stars?
When was the last time we,
said that the world was ours?

Oh mother,
Oh mother, I'm outgrown,
We never can not know,
We never can outgrow.
