You heard a lot about you huh? Well was it good shit or bad shit? I bet you twenty bones that it was some bad shit But that doesn't even matter though Cuz any publicity is good publicity, as long as they mention me I must be doing something right But they ain't doing nothing right, I'm making sure that I'm busting tight Now everybody wanna be Hey holmes you heard Lil' Rob's new jam? He's talking shit about me Whoa, whoa, whoa, don't flatter yourself Later on you're gonna look back at yourself, and be all mad at yourself For acting like a little girl, chavala Roll the fuck up, you try too much, you need to slow the fuck up Hold the fuck up, shut the fuck up Silence is golden like the Daytons that I'm rolling around the town that I'm patrolling The town I live in is lonely, it's lonely but I still won't cry It's just me, myself, and I

I walk up on the scene with my white sneakers My big ass Levis, my big ass t-shirt and look around to see who I see The same fucking people who can't see me You can close your eyes, it's getting kind of rough You can open your eyes, they're still not wide enough To even catch a sneek peek or Peek A Boo of what the Lil' Rob is all about When I leave they all follow out Lil' Rob be the one of a kind With the one of a kind mind, most of the time I can't find mine You ask me how I'm doing and I still say that I'm fine Walking on that fine line, no time on my time line Who left the door open? Your time just ran out As for patience, well mine just ran out And I got nothing left to do but to sit back patiently To make sure you continue hating me

You pinche levas got me dying, dying of laughter You think it's funny, we'll see who's still laughing after You're not on the same page, not even the same chapter You shouldn't have been a rapper, you should have been an actor You pinche levas got me dying, dying of laughter You think it's funny, we'll see who's still laughing after You're not on the same page, not even the same chapter I'm gonna laugh last, I'll have the last laugh (2x)
