Linda Davis

He's got her photograph
On a stand by his bed
Two on the mantle
And a thousands in his head

He can't believe how fast she's changing
It ain't supposed to be like this
Every time he looks at her
He sees how much he missed

He missed her first steps
Her first words
And I love you, daddy

Oh, it hurts him so
To watch his baby grow

He sends the money down
Does his best to do his part
But it can't compare
To what he pays with his heart

There's still one unanswered question
That weighs heavy on his mind
Will she ever understand
When he tells her why?

He missed her first steps
Her first words
And I love you, daddy

It takes all he has to keep the hurt inside
What he wouldn't give if he could turn back time

He missed her first steps
Her first words
And I love you, daddy
