

Man Enough

Lloyd Cole

Now that the low life has no meaning
'Cause you've been there
Now you're gone
But your heart won't keep from cheating
It's stringing you along
Stranger to me
Well, what's the lowdown?
Are you man enough to pray
For a better way of living?
I believe I've lost my way
Oh, May, could you please hold me?
I believe I might fall
I believe that I might fall
Could there be a better way of living
Better than the easy way?
Could the wretched be forgiven?
Are you man enough to pray?
Wore my heart upon my sleeve
To court the wretched and the free
But if by chance I'd lost my way
Would you help me find it, babe?
Oh, May, could you please hold me?
I believe that I might fall
I believe I might fall
Now that the low life has no meaning
'Cause you've been there
Now you're gone
But your heart won't keep from cheating
It's stringing you along
Wore my heart upon my sleeve
To court the wretched and the free
But if by chance I'd lost my way
Would you help me find it, babe?
Oh, May, could you please hold me?
I believe that I might fall
I believe that I might fall
Wore my heart upon my sleeve
To court the wretched and the free
But if by chance I'd lost my way
Am I man enough to pray?
Am I man enough to pray?
Are you man enough to pray?
Are you man enough to pray?