Now that the low life has no meaning 'Cause you've been there Now you're gone But your heart won't keep from cheating It's stringing you along Stranger to me Well, what's the lowdown? Are you man enough to pray For a better way of living? I believe I've lost my way Oh, May, could you please hold me? I believe I might fall I believe that I might fall Could there be a better way of living Better than the easy way? Could the wretched be forgiven? Are you man enough to pray? Wore my heart upon my sleeve To court the wretched and the free But if by chance I'd lost my way Would you help me find it, babe? Oh, May, could you please hold me? I believe that I might fall I believe I might fall Now that the low life has no meaning 'Cause you've been there Now you're gone But your heart won't keep from cheating It's stringing you along Wore my heart upon my sleeve To court the wretched and the free But if by chance I'd lost my way Would you help me find it, babe? Oh, May, could you please hold me? I believe that I might fall I believe that I might fall Wore my heart upon my sleeve To court the wretched and the free But if by chance I'd lost my way Am I man enough to pray? Am I man enough to pray? Are you man enough to pray? Are you man enough to pray?