

Weekend Lover

Lollipop

Weekend Lover > Lollipop
Do you really think I'll cry for you?
You'd better believe I'm strong enough
To live my life without you
With no lies, without you, oh no
Do you really think I'd die for you?
You'd better believe I'm tough enough
To spend my life without you, boy
'cause I'm not your weekend lover
Bottles of wine and flowers
Pretending the night was ours
We shared each other's love
(I swear that I love you, baby)
But now that the dawn is breaking
The magic is disappearing
And the thrill we felt has flown away
Strong enough
Im not your weekend lover
Do you really think I'll cry for you?
You'd better believe I'm strong enough
To live my life without you
With no lies, without you, oh no
Do you really think I'd die for you?
You'd better believe I'm tough enough
To spend my life without you, boy
'cause I'm not your weekend lover
Good enough, bad enough, strong enough
I'm not a weekend lover
Images of empty glasses
The sound of last night's kisses
Is still ringing in my head
(hey honey, this is a promise)
But now that the light is shining
You keep on justifying yourself
And the words we said have flown away
Do you really think I'll cry for you?
You'd better believe I'm strong enough
To live my life without you
With no lies, without you, oh no
Do you really think I'd die for you?
You'd better believe I'm tough enough
To spend my life without you, boy
'cause I'm not your weekend lover
You couldn't handle me
So threw my heart away
But though you are not here anymore
I still believe in love
Do you really think I'll cry for you?
You'd better believe I'm strong enough
To live my life without you
With no lies, without you, oh no
Do you really think I'd die for you?
You'd better believe I'm tough enough
To spend my life without you, boy
'cause I'm not your weekend lover
I still believe in love
Cause Im not your weekend lover