One second in eternity

When I look into the mirror There is someone that I see A man who has got true friends As well as enemies And I know darkness so well But also the light And believe me when I say I know what's worth the fight The warrior's rest When he won in the end How great can be One second in eternity I am always fighting for For what I believe is right And of course some bad mistakes I have already made But at least I'm not faceless I got my own pride And I am the only one To master my own fate
