Any One, Any Worse, Any Where

Loretta Lynn

You're tellin' me how bad I am for loving him
That I can't be much and love him, he's your man
Go on say I'm no good, call me anything you dare

For if how much I love him tells how bad I am
Then you won't find any one, any worse, any where
I treat him like the man he is and when he needs, I'm there
He must not think that I'm so bad for he takes me everywhere
But if how much I love him tells how bad I am
Then you won't find any one, any worse, any where

You're tellin' me that you will never set him free
And you say that we've disgraced you, him and me
You know you don't love him and he knows how much I care

So if how much I love him tells how bad I am
Then you won't find any one, any worse, any where
I treat him like the man he is and when he needs, I'm there
He must not think that I'm so bad for he takes me everywhere
But if how much I love him tells how bad I am
Then you won't find any one, any worse, any where
