

They Say

Lou Rhodes

They say 'protect yourself"
I say "from what"
They say "hold a little love inside"
I say "but I wanna give all I got"
They say "leave him and he'll come running"
I say "how could I"
They say "we're going drinking are you coming"
I say "I'd rather stay alone and cry"

How could I forget you
When you're so much a part of me
If love is a prison
Well they can throw away the key

They say "he's not the one for you"
I say "they don't know"
They say "move on to pastimes greener"
I say "to face this is to grow"

How could I forget you
When you're so much a part of me
If love is a prison
Well they can throw away the key
Throw away yeah

How can I forget you
When you're so much a part of me
If love is a prison
Well they can throw away the key

Broken I find your clothes
And dress myself in them

Broken I find your clothes
And dress myself in them

Broken I find your clothes
And dress myself in them

Broken I find your clothes
And dress myself in them

How can I forget you
When you're so much a part of me
If love is a prison
Well they can throw away the key
Throw away yeah

How can I forget you
When you're so much a part of me
If love is a prison
Well they can throw away the key
Throw away, throw away
Throw away the key, the key, the key

Broken I find your clothes
And dress myself in them

Broken I find your clothes
And dress myself in them

Broken I find your clothes
And dress myself in them

Broken I find your clothes
And dress myself in them
