

From the Ashes

Amy Macdonald

Twenty-five years or so, it's all I've ever known
Pictures on the wall in the place that I call home
We blew it up and burned it down and now we stand alone
Flames so high in ashes down below
Flames so high in ashes down below

All my hopes and memories are blowing in the wind
I started off with nothing and I'm back here once again
The little things in life are free
The simple things, like you and me
Like love, like love

It's okay to start again cause change is gonna come
Nothing ever stays the same, it's not like we're still young
Let's blow it up and burn it down so we can stand alone
Fear of change, no fear of the unknown

All my hopes and memories are blowing in the wind
I started off with nothing and I'm back here once again
The little things in life are free
The simple things like you and me
And like love, like love, like love, like love

The sky above, the earth below, fire within me, let it glow
The sky above the Earth below, fire within me, let it glow
The sky above, the earth below, fire within me, let it glow
The sky above the Earth below, fire within me, let it glow
