Rise and Fall

Madness

These are the streets I used to walk On summer nights, sit out and talk That's the house where I used to live I remember what I would give.

This is the town I won't forget And after anger there's nothing left Walking now round and round Familiar sights are open ground.

Being here again I can recall Forgotten moments The rise and fall.

We used to live where children play They leave their homes a mile away To come and stand in trees and grass Where we once walked the memories last.

Being here again I can recall Forgotten moments The rise and fall.

The sun shines east, the sun shines west But I know where the sun shines best Casey street in the afternoon Once again it's over too soon.

Being here again I can recall Forgotten moments The rise and fall.

Being here again I can recall Forgotten moments The rise and fall.

Rise (Rise) (Rise)

Rise and fall Rise and fall

. . .