Remains Of You

Mads Langer

Constellation a silver chandelier Hanging overhead like frozen tears Realization that I must have let go And I'm still spinning all alone

The stars are falling like rain Crashing all around my head tonight And a dark sky is all that remains of you

Imagination temps me with a smile Draws me in then leaves me running wild No sedation to swallow with my pride An avalanche is breaking loose and I can't hide

The stars are falling like rain Crashing all around my head tonight And a dark sky is all that remains of you

Twilight left me blind And now all that ever shined is gone with you

The stars are falling like rain Crashing all around my head tonight And a dark sky is all that remains of you Remains of you

Twilight left me blind