

every single night i think it's almost over almost over, almost over every single night i think it's almost over uhh, the mess we're in every single night i hear the great beast howling great beast howling, great beast howling
every single night i hear the great beast howling
uhh, the mess we're in would you like to see the whole place in ruins instead of all the things that they keep doing in our names would you like to see the whole place a wreck and built back as something we all might respect uhh, the mess we're in now every single night i think how we used to be decent how it hasn't been recent every single night i think how we used to be decent uhh, the mess we're in every single night i see the northern lights i think they're just burning the dead in the streets of heaven every single night i see the northern lights i think uhh, the mess they must be in would you like to see a start all over again only we'd be dead the whole time not just at the end that's the only time we'd ever be equal
that's the only time we'd ever be equal
every single night i hear the great beast calling (call us) great beast calling, great beast calling every single night i hear the great beast calling the beast says hurry up
the beast says hurry up