

Say Goodbye

Maia Hirasawa

She comes at four
I make some tea
Sits down at the table in front of me
She talks in 185
She doesn't feel good, I know exactly why

'Cause this has happened before, and I know why
This will happen again for sure
So please just dare
And say it loud and clear

Say good bye
To all of these
Ghosts in your head, there's one sleeping in your bed
And the scariest from home who don't seem to care
Say goodbye

I say to her that I've felt the same way
But I know my words don't count today
'Cause I'm not there right now and she knows
I'm where she wants to be, but the wind seems to blow too hard on her, she pushes it away

But it all comes back to her
We've been through this over and over again
My friend

Say good bye
To all of these
Ghosts in your head, there's one sleeping in your bed
And the scariest from home who don't seem to care

'Cause the ghosts in your head, they won't stop until you're dead
And leave the other ones so they'll be able to realize
That you're too beautiful
To look that sad
Too beautiful
To not be happy, not be glad

Beautiful you're not alone
Beautiful 'cause I sing this song for you
Say goodbye
