

When Are We Waking Up?

Mallory Knox

Tainted memories are all I have to live with now you're gone
And I won't sleep tonight
No I won't dream at all about days I've spent alone

And the words cut like a knife back when you said those words to me
I spent many days rebuilding broken bones
And our ghosts live in the hallway where they play inside my mind
And they lead me down the roads we used to go, woah

So don't hold me darling
I see the time go round when it's all been said & done
I don't think you're lying alone
And my head keeps spinning at the thought of the past with these memories built on stone
I don't think you're lying alone

So run home, hide yourself beneath the sheets & lay alone Or quiver inside & hear the walls fall down as we break all we used to know
Well I can't wait here any longer the ground is waiting to eat me whole
You weren't the one who needed saving turns out it was me all along

So don't hold me darling
I see the time go round when it's all been said & done
I don't think you're lying alone
And my head keeps spinning at the thought of the past with these
memories built on stone
I don't think you're lying alone

When are we waking up? When are we waking up?
When are we waking up? When are we waking up alone?
When are we waking up? When are we waking up?
When are we waking up? When are we waking up alone?

So don't hold me darling
I see the time go round when it's all been said & done
I don't think you're lying alone
And my head keeps spinning at the thought of the past with these
memories built on stone
I don't think you're lying alone

When are we waking up? When are we waking up?
When are we waking up? When are we waking up alone?
When are we waking up? When are we waking up?

When are we waking up? When are we waking up alone?
