

Curtains

Man Man

You might tongue how Bernadine
Even though your heathen days
Are long
Gone

And the need to be redeemed is such a boring thing to Want

Caved in, hibernating
Waiting for the sun
To come along to dry you out
And hang you from a cloud