You Wouldn't Cry (Andrew'S Song)

All you saw was pain All you saw was rain But you should see me now Moments filled with tears Lasted all those years Disappeared somehow You never said goodbye On your knees you cry You're still asking why, but

Blue has never been bluer True has never been truer Honey never tasted so sweet There's a song in the breeze A million voices in praise A rose has never smelled redder The sun has never been brighter If I could find the right words to say If you could look at my face If you could look at my face If you could just see this place You wouldn't cry for me today

What you think you see Isn't really me I'm already home You've got to lay it down 'Cause Jesus holds me now And I am not alone Your faith is wearing thin But I am watching Him And He's holding you too, and

What may seem like years will just be a moment Oh, the day will come when I'll show you where you're going I can't wait to show you that

[Chorus]
