Blond Boy

Marc Almond

The boy with the young heart left the boy with the sad eyes And went to the boy with the grin Heart on his biceps, suffering another love Could be the end of him The blond boy Blond boy The blond boy Blond boy '82 in the president hotel Just the blond boy with me Bad blood, jacking off jism and blues Cliff richard on the black and white tv The blond boy The blond boy The blond boy The blond boy If the world don't get much better We'll go and get a gun, hide it in our cellar T'was then I knew that I'd rather be With a .22 calibre next to me Than the blond boy Than the blond boy Blond boy Than the blond boy The blond boy Blond boy Blond boy Blond boy I can sin all my life for God will forgive me Can't seem to suppress cruel feelings within me God will forgive me they taught me when young So I do what I like and say sorry when done Blond boy The blond boy Blond boy The blond boy We're always cruel to the ones we love Always cruel to the ones we love We're always cruel to the ones we love Always cruel to the ones we love Blond boy The blond boy Blond boy The blond boy Riverside drives, years before Flattened up against the bathroom door Said you were the one, well to hell I lied Too many problems boiling up inside Blond boy The blond boy Blond boy The blond boy It's an endless search, how you know that hell When I saw you last year and you were looking well No bad blood, fake love, no feelings for me Sad, but that's the way it was meant to be Blond boy

The blond boy Blond boy The blond boy Boyhood in illness, adolescence on the rack Didn't come this far to fall flat on my back Boyhood in illness, adolescence on the rack Didn't come this far to fall flat on my back Blond boy The blond boy No no! Arghhhhhh! hit me where it hurts! Blond boy The blond boy Blond boy The blond boy Ha ha ha ha ha ha! Blond boy The blond boy Blond boy The blond boy Boy!
