

Homeless

Maria Mena

What is in this wine?
the more I drink the more I wander off into a stranger's eyes I like the way that they reflect my thoughts what is in this air?

it feels like feathery dust everywhere and as I breathe it in I breathe the masculine scent of his skin and I feel homeless

your comfortable caress has triggered unfamiliar restlessness you and I are we I feel I've lost my individuality you're watching me rebel believing stories only hearts can tell but when is it enough? when do I call my feelings on their bluff

and I feel homeless

and I remember us now but I forgot what we felt like somewhere along the way
