

While the Rest of Me Is Waking Up

Maria Taylor

I remember the way that you played me
You were bright as the night that was calling
But then I would cry like a baby
There was nothing that you wouldn't offer

But time, time, time
Has written these lines, lines, lines
Around my eyes, eyes, eyes
That once were in bloom
And my life, life, life
Has multiplied
It's now in the breathe
Of two beautiful lives

We shadows sway [?]
'Cause they're fading to set in stone
When the shore to leave horizon
While the rest of me is waking up

I remember the songs that you played me
The words that would keep me up guessing
And it was best with your hand on my chest
And the mornings that granted me blessings

But time, time, time
Has soften my smile, smile, smile
That's made me fragile
Where I once was a stone
And these days, days, days
They're falling away
The songs that you sang
I don't know anymore

We shadows sway [?]
'Cause they're fading to set in stone
When the shore to leave horizon
While the rest of me is waking up

We shadows sway [?]
'Cause they're fading to set in stone
When the shore to leave horizon
While the rest of me is waking up
