The Leavers (II) The Remainers

Marillion

The Remainers remain in their homely places Go home, wash their faces, lay down their heads As the Leavers take with them their lonely craziness Our fast-moving laughter Our fast-moving beds And our hearts slowly lose focus Like gypsies at fairs We will meet someone new somewhere else