

The Rakes Progress

Marillion

What do you do when your roots have dissolved and broken down
And the soil that you grew in when you were small
Has become nothing more than dirt in some dirty town

When you list all the qualities that you despise
And you realize
You're describing yourself

And breaking someone up inside
Is your only source of pride