

Heart Paper Lover

Marissa Nadler

You were gone and I was gone and all of the flowers were dead and gone

And all of the things that I had, were songs again Weaving the scent of the loss of your heart
from they are to meant Life seems so empty
without you, my friend

Heartpaper lover
Are you gone again
heart paper lover
Are you gone again
Are you mine again

Grass is green all along sun is filtering, yellow strong I ripped and I burned all the papers
To the dust with them
Weaving the scent of the loss of your heart
from they are to meant

Life seems so empty
without you, my friend

Heart paper lover
Are you mine again
Heart paper lover
Are you gone again
Heart paper lover
Are you gone again
