

Fine Line

Marit Larsen

Show me the way and I'll follow you
Give me the book and I'll read it too
Give me a time and I'll sit and wait

Give me another weary fight
Give me one more of our endless nights
Give me something to hang on to

They say it's a fine line between love and hate
I'd rather be fighting than losing you, babe
You ran away with my favorite song
You think we're no good
I know that you're wrong

You know how it gets when I get mad
You should only believe the better half of what's said
I can only imagine the damage done

If we were a record I could rewind
If I could go back and change my lines
I'd settle for being your friend today

They say it's a fine line between love and hate
I'd rather be fighting than losing you babe
You ran away with my favorite song
You think we're no good
I know that you're wrong

We may get lost along the way
But you and I have got what it takes
There's no denying a simple truth
Like I love you

They say it's a fine line between love and hate
I'd rather be fighting than losing you babe
You ran away with my favorite song
You think we're no good
I know that you're wrong

It's a fine line between love and hate
I'd rather be fighting than losing you babe
It's a fine line, it's a fine line
It's a fine line, it's a fine line
It's a fine line between love and hate
You ran away with my favorite song
