

Woman

Mark Chesnutt

Woman, woman I know you better
Probably even better
Than you even know yourself by now

Now woman, where do you think you're going?
You know you're not going
To get any further than your mama's house
Before you turn around and come running back

I know this and you know that
You're just mad and there's a chance
A really good chance that I'm wrong again
I usually am

But girl you know as sure as rain
I'm always right about one thing
I know a little fight can change
I'm your man, you're my woman

Woman you know I'm sorry
For me being such a sorry
Lousy, inconsiderate so and so

So woman now that we've got that over
How 'bout we skip over the part where you leave me
Standing in your dust and start making up
Glad to have you back

I know this and you know that
You're just mad and there's a chance
A really good chance that I'm wrong again
I usually am

But girl you know as sure as rain
I'm always right about one thing
I know a little fight can change
I'm your man, you're my woman

I know this and you know that
You're just mad and there's a chance
A really good chance that I'm wrong again
I usually am

But girl you know as sure as rain
I'm always right about one thing
I might be a pain but still the fact remains
I'm your man, you're my woman
