

The False Husband

Mark Lanegan

Where have you been, my darling?
Where have you been, my friend?
Where have you been, my darling?
Where have you been, my friend?

A crow flew past my window sill
Stole me away from you until
You change your heart or change your will
Aren't you darling

Where have you been, my darling?
Where have you been, my friend?
Where have you been, my darling?
Where have you been, my friend?

And all the while that you would burn
Your tongue was working overtime
Love foregone and life's so good
Aren't you darling

In my words I cherry picked
Something fought and died today
With all our words I care not say
I need you darling

(Where have you been, my darling?)
I've been chasing up loftier mountains
(Where have you been, my friend?)
Be it against my will
(Where have you been, my darling?)
You keep telling me "don't get no higher"
(Where have you been, my friend?)
But I'll be higher still
