

Are you afraid?
The wind is calling for the departed to rise from the grave They're searching for clues there's nothing to find when your chalk outline is all that remains The date on your tombstone, the reaping that you've sown it could have been different but people don't change life after death so let's both go there together

I am not a fugitive
I just wanted to be free from the secrets and the ghosts that have been chasing after me and if you find my cold remains will you bury them with you in a field far away from the damage that they do damage that they do

Are you afraid?
the pressure's building the ground is the future, the past is the ledge crossing the desert, a desperate measure but life will be better, isn't that what you said?
He's haunting her still, she just wanted glory but not every story is told on a page I know what you did You can't say 'nevermind' forever

I am not a fugitive
I just wanted to be free
from the secrets and the ghosts
that have been chasing after me
and if you find my cold remains
will you bury them with you
in a field far away from the damage that they do
damage that they do