

Don't Disappear Now

Marshall Crenshaw

There is a certain appeal to danger and pain
When she whispered those words, I said
Whats your name?
Right then I knew in my heart
That we shouldn't start
But there you go

Could she mess up my mind?
She looked so fine
I just had to know

So we got into her car
And drove to her place
We didn't stop making love
For thirty long days
Until the telephone rang
My very soul she did command
All it took was her smile
The wink of her eye
The wave of her hand

So just imagine how I'm feeling right now
No word from her again today
Did she follow that dream like a flaming star
I hope she hasn't gone to stay
I just wish that I could find a way
To make her hear these words somehow
I need you bad

Don't disappear now
Well meet again by and by
Til then Ill try to keep moving my shoes
One step ahead of the blues
