

Run Back To You

Marshall Crenshaw

All of a sudden, in the wrong place and time
I hear an echo in the back of my mind
Of all the tears that I've wasted on you
And all of the things that we used to do

Although I know that I can make it without you
Even though I'm really tired of thinking about you
And all of the things that we used to do
And all of the trouble we're puttin' each other through

I can't help it if I want to run back to you
Now, don't try to run and hide
I'm gonna track you far and wide
And I don't care if I hurt my pride
I can't help it if I still want you by my side

Come home and tell me that you'll give me a listen
You left my ego in a ruined condition
I hear an echo in the back of my mind
It's coming around for the millionth time

I can't help it if I want to run back to you
And I'm gonna run back to you
I just gotta run back to you
I can't help it if I run back to you
