

One True Place

Mary Black

One of these days you'll be wandering
Over sea and over land
To a place where we can be together
Once again
And although we now have parted
I do believe
That those who truly love each other
Will meet again
And although your heart is heavy
And your mind it needs to rest
Even though your days are reeling in
And coming to an end

Let there be no sorrow
Let there be no pain
For there comes to you a promise that
We'll meet again
In the real, in the one true place

You may think I've gone
But I'm still here, I'm in the next room
You may think that it was wrong for me
To leave you all alone
But some things are bigger than both of us
You understand here and now
But I promise there will be no sorrow
There will be no pain
When we meet in the one true place again

One of these days you'll be wandering
Over sea and over land
To a place where we can be together
Let there be no sorrow
Let there be no pain
For there comes to you a promise that
We'll meet again
In the real, in the one true place
With you
One true place
Again
One true place
With you
Again