Prayer Without Words

Mary Gauthier

Packing vagabond visions and a dream drenched hunger for a home Swaddled in road dirt, blood stained blankets and poems On a stormy suitcase Sunday I awakened to the scream of the bir ds

They held their high notes and offered prayer without words

Sinking in asphalt, speechlessness and what could of been Surrounded by strangers, scarred stars, stoned broken men Riding the narcotic night, 'til she swerved and smashed into the curb

Morning spilled from the wreckage and offered prayer without wo rds

Chains on the mast pull the past, nothing lasts but nothing eve rends

I leave town, break new ground, break down, leave town again Trapped in the circle, anchored to the weight of the world Under shooting stars that sink the skies and offer prayer without words

Justice rides with jaundiced eyes, jaded judges bleed the broke n bench

Liberty's a homicide, she been flogged to death with money's monkey wrench

Desperado apostates set fire to every holy word we've heard Silence billows from the burning book and offers prayer without words

Surrender, that sweet cleaning girl, folds white flags in Halle lujah Square

She can't remember where she's been, one day I'm gonna join her there

Unpack my battered traveling case, hang out a sign that says "D o Not Disturb"

Dissolve into a dreamless sleep that offers prayer without word ${\bf s}$
