

Looking For You Again

Matthew Perryman Jones

Your breakdown was easy to see
But it took you away
Further from me
Sifting through mishaps and photographs
I think of you
Much more than I should
More than I should

And I'm falling down
Like it's holy ground
I'm looking for you again
I'm looking for you again

Slow regrets that live in the dark
I wrote them all down
But I know them by heart
I've counted the cost of this loneliness
And paid for the crime
And one day I'll die
With you in my mind

And I'm falling down
Like it's holy ground
I'm looking for you again
I'm looking for you again

I'm not letting you go again
I'm not letting this story end
I'm not letting you go again

And I'm falling down
Like it's holy ground
I'm looking for you again
I'm looking for you again