

Life Without You

Matthew Sweet

Every time you go away, I know there's nothing I can say
But I don't know how to stay alive, no matter what I keep inside
Or what I let escape from the place where you walked through
But I wouldn't want a life without you, no I wouldn't want a life without you

Every time you go away there are some rules I do obey
If you had to watch me scream and cry, you'd feel the need I'm living by
A fragment of the pain that the world has put you through
But I wouldn't want a life without you, no I wouldn't want a life without you

A fragment of the pain that the world has put you through
But I wouldn't want a life without you, no I wouldn't want a life without you
