do you realize what they have done showed me I am not the only one planted something in my mind now I've begun to find missing time I want back I'm afraid that I can feel missing time I want back didn't realize they took from me everything my eyes had lived to see even when they touched my heart I felt I could not move missing time holds the key something they left here with me missing time I want back is there something I can almost see 'cause you know they're coming back for me even as you watch us go missing time holds the key something they left here with me missing time I want back I'm afraid that I can feel missing time I want back I'm afraid that I can feel missing time I want back