Once Upon A Day

Mechanical Poet

In the middle of the night Just let yourself awake Step to a windowpane See how the willows dance around the lake Take a minute to get dressed Then sneak across the floor Now turn your Walkman on Put on the phones and fly outside the door

Magic hour has arrived Take your pains away Fairytale comes in your life Just as you wished it Once upon a day

Run across a clover meadow Wet your face with dew Ride with the fairies down the empty lanes And see your dreams come true Let your heart be free as much As you might ever need Wait 'til the morning rays sweep down the stars And wake the sleepy streets

Magic hour has arrived Take your pains away Fairytale comes in your life Just as you wished it Once upon a day

Remember how they called you nuts Remember how you stood the grief How many tears you cried What pain you felt But still tried to believe Remember how your heart was bleeding While you smiled But you still didn't stop believing... You just couldn't give it up

Magic hour has arrived Take your pains away Fairytale comes in your life Just as you wished it

Magic hour has arrived Take your pains away Fairytale comes in your life Just as you wished it Once upon a day Once upon a day Once upon a day
