

Fighting For Nothing

Meg & Dia

When I was younger,
I wish that I would have known better
Better love makes a fat romance
Lasts for more than a shoe shine

I'm older, Took all the words of my mother
Saying it could be worse
Could be born with that disease
Instead of catching it first

So let's go back to the first time that I met you
In your Chevy
With your hands stretched
And me crying, screaming
"Mercy, mercy"

But I know that I was put here
To fight vikings in a cold war
With my arms out and fighting,
Dare me, dare me

Well these things take time, love
These things take backbone
And they'll tell you what you want to hear
Cause they think it's better, better

But you better know how
To point out the liars
You've got to weigh your wars
Make sure you're not fighting for nothing, nothing
Are you fighting for nothing, nothing?

It feels like this world has
Been growing slowly upside-down
Maybe I should move to China
Straighten this mess out

Maybe I'll be a poet
Watch all the sky for falling words
Write about my grandma's curtains
Or the lady who put the Chinese buffet in her purse..

I've got my mouth, it's a weapon
It's a bombshell, it's a cannon
I've got my words
I won't give them mercy, mercy

Well these things take time, love
These things take backbone
And they'll tell you what you want to hear
Cause they think it's better, better

But you better know how
To point out the liars
You're got to weigh your wars
Make sure you're not fighting for nothing, nothing
Are you fighting for nothing, nothing?

I've got my words, I hope they hurt you
I hope they scar you, I hope they heal you...

I hope they cut you open, make you see all the war 'n
For all the wrong reasons, make you see that some things
Are worth bruising for
Make you see that your name is your honor code
Make you see that your hands you're uncared for

They can choose where your sweat and your blood will go
Make you see your life's not to be lived alone
Run a split through your head
You're worth nothing, nothing

Well these things take time, love
These things take backbone
And we'll tell you what you want to hear
Cause they think it's better, better

But you better know how
To point out the liars
You're got to weigh your wars
Make sure you're not fighting for nothing, nothing

Well these things take time
These things take backbone
And they'll tell you what you want to hear
Cause they think it's better, better

But you better know how
To point out the liars
You've got to weigh your wars
Make sure you're not fighting for nothing, nothing
I'm fighting for nothing, nothing..
