Hug Me

Meg & Dia

You hold me close, naked.
I don't feel a thing.
Your zippers are the cherry,
But I don't feel anything.
Your mind is stranded down,
I am closing you in my arms,
And I prefer overweight than plastic anyday.

Hug me till you drug me,
Honey, hug me anyway.

Your eyes are dusty, dirt porn magazines.
You're lazy, selfish,
But you were raised that way.
It's a whore that was bred.
I'll take your pants,
You take my hair,
And let us dance and cheers
To happy and depressed.

Hug me till you drug me,
Honey, hug me.
Drug me till you love me,
Honey, love me any...

Wait. Wait.
I swear I've seen that face somewhere.
It's the very face I fell for in the human race.
I can't lie.
I was brainwashed to be honest,
In this brave new world that slowly passes by.

I'm just a girl learning to act as planned.
I was programmed to be Catholic,
But I ran.
I changed my race,
I changed my name,
I prayed to them,
"Please, what is brave?"
I am loyal because I was simply raised that way.

Hug me till you drug me,
Honey, hug me.
Hug me till you suffocate me,
Hug me any...

Wait. Wait.
I swear I've seen that face somewhere.
It's the very face I fell for in the human race.
I can't lie.
I was brainwashed to be honest,
In this brave new world that slowly passes...

By the way,
I never like your hands in me.
Never like your ideas of what is beautiful
Or really truly holy.

And I must say,
You've thrown your apathy away.
Grown back into your diapers,
Will you die first,
before admit the truth?

Wait. Wait.
I swear I've seen that face somewhere.
It's the very face I fell for in the human race.
I can't lie.
I was brainwashed to be honest,
In this brave new world that slowly passes by.

I can't lie.
I was brainwashed to be honest,
In this brave new world that slowly passes by.

I can't lie.
I was brainwashed to be honest,
In this brave new world that slowly passes by.

Wait. Wait.
I swear I've seen that face somewhere.
It's the very face I fell for in the human race.
I can't lie.
I was brainwashed to be honest,
In this brave new world that slowly passes by.