

Just Too Many People

Melissa Manchester

Somebody told me a long long time ago
Baby, I feel the change in me is comin' on I've found the strength I need to carry on Something's come over me at last

Ooh, sweet darlin'
Long as you stay by me, I'm halfway home
I can see brighter days before me
Though it's been stormy, at least I know I'm not alone

'Cause there's just too many people in this world who are undecided
There's just too many broken people afraid to take the stand
Oh, there's just too many lonely people livin' in a house divided
By loneliness and sorrow, I'll never understand

Somebody told me a long long time ago
Remember when you need something to believe in
Look in my eyes to find your heaven
I'll make it happen and I need to know you're there

'Cause there's just too many people in this world who are undecided
There's just too many broken people afraid to take the stand
Oh, there's just too many lonely people livin' in a house divided
By loneliness and sorrow, it's more than I can stand

Somebody told me
(Somebody told me)
Somebody told me
(Somebody told me)

Somebody told me
Somebody told me

There's just too many people in this world who are undecided
There's just too many broken people afraid to take the stand
Oh, there's just too many lonely people livin' in a house divided
By loneliness and sorrow, it's more than I can stand

Oh, there's just too many people in this world who are undecided
There's just too many broken people afraid to take the stand
Oh, there's just too many lonely people livin' in a house divided

By loneliness and sorrow, it's more than I can stand
