The Bitter End

Memory Garden

My heart ignored the moment I'm lost in the air where I bleed You bring eternal torment

In my imagination I'm still where I want to be Reality unleash the darkness I will see

Another day is dawning To bring the veil that I need My soul is still in mourning Suffering indeed

In dreams I see my future I find it hard to believe I'm bound to follow you Forever I will grieve

I can see the world is turning To the bitter end

I can feel you crawling underneath my skin I believe you feel the hate I feel for you

I can see the world is turning To the bitter end

When I've reached the day of quickening And my days on earth will end There's no use to feel sorrow My mortal soul will be condemned

Now I can see it clearer, I have told myself a lie In my redeeming moments, I prepare myself to die
