

I Forget You Every Day

Merle Haggard

Memory is a gift a man can't live without
And in times we can't control the things we think about
So sometimes I still remember you in every way
But for a little while I forget you every day
Seems like I forget you just in time
Cause it's always just before I lose my mind
I wake up every morning hurting the same old way
But for a little while I forget you every day

Seems like I forget you every day
And it's always just before I lose my mind
I wake up every morning hurting the same old way
But for a little while I forget you every day