Suffer Fools

Metal Church

I can see the empty sky that's not to far away There will be no place to hide, the light got in the way Back to start do it again and try some other way If you don't take it to heart you'll die another day

We don't suffer fools That is the golden rule We don't suffer fools And you're the fool

If you build a house divide and build it on the sand The tide rolls in and knocks it down and now it's no mans land There will never be a time that you will live in peace And no matter how you try you'll never find relief