

Anytime You Need Me

Michael Franti & Spearhead

In a city that burns so loud you cant hear a sound, the whole world drives by with the speakers on concrete apartments and the windows with a million other people but still you just feel alone everybody needs a friend just to listen to em everybody needs a friend who aint tryna screw em everybody needs a friend to go through it with when you wake up or when youre falling in love when you need a friend, somebody to walk to my friend, somebody to talk to ill wait right there waiting for you anytime, anytime you want me anytime, anytime you need me

ill walk right back over again right back over again
right back over again
to you my friend, to you my friend, to you just like some kind of animal i would run through a jungle of criminals through the valley of darkness or loneliness fly across the great abyss just to grant a single wish i might trip, but im never stumbling im right there when your whole worlds crumbling ill be the one to pick you up when youve had too much to drink bent over the sink

see when you need a friend somebody to walk to my friend, somebody to talk to ill be right there waiting for you cause i watch the stars with a million other people with a million other people i watch the stars with a million other people

with a million other people

In a city that burns so loud you cant hear a sound,

to you my friend, to you walk right over again

to you my friend
to you
