

You Should Have Told Me

Monifah

I gave you my heart in the hopes that you might give me yours
But now I'm at the point of losing you
Your laugh and your smile made me feel everything was secure
And that no one could love me like you do

You should have told me it wasn't forever
Your eyes tell me things that your heart cannot say
You should have told me that you were not ready to love
You should have told me that you could not stay with me

Oh I love you

I gave you my trust, thinking no one could love me so much
And I hate to think that it could never end
The warmth of your touch cast upon me a feeling I know
Two people share when they are more than friends

You should have told me it wasn't forever
Your eyes tell me things that your heart cannot say
You should have told me that you were not ready to love
You should have told me that you could not stay with me

Is it my loving you that makes you be this way?
I feel like such a fool, you've brought me so much pain
You should have told me something, not lead me to believe
That we'd be together forever and ever

You should have told me it wasn't forever
Your eyes tell me things that your heart cannot say
You should have told me that you were not ready to love
You should have told me that you could not stay with me

You should have told me it wasn't forever
Your eyes tell me things that your heart cannot say
You should have told me that you were not ready to love
You should have told me that you could not stay with me

You should have told me, tell me, tell me
You should have told me
